Introduction

A BOY IN A GIRL-ONLY BOARDING SCHOOL A completely reimagined 20-chapter novel · Comedy · Mystery · Friendship · Football · School life

One boy. One girls-only boarding school. One pink-haired girl. One best friend who thinks he’s a millionaire. And one mystery buried beneath a school that seems to remember a life nobody can remember living.

PROLOGUE — THE SCHOOL THAT WASN’T NORMAL Hey there! My name is Yahya Mohamed, but I like to call myself Yaya.

I'm a student, a gamer, a developer, and—apparently—a professional survivor of extremely unusual school situations.

I like computers, artificial intelligence, football, gaming, and building things. My dream is to become a computer scientist one day.

Basically, I enjoy anything that involves technology.

Except printers.

Printers are evil.

But I never expected my biggest problem to be a school.

Especially not THIS school.

CIS MIDDLE SCHOOL JR. G.

A boarding school.

And somehow, I was going to be one of its students.

I didn't know why my parents had agreed to this arrangement. I didn't know why the school had accepted me. And I definitely didn't know that my arrival would eventually lead to secret notebooks, forgotten memories, mysterious messages, and a football move that apparently existed before I invented it.

All I knew was that I was about to have the strangest school year of my life.

And it started on a Monday.

CHAPTER 1 — THE BOY WHO DIDN'T BELONG

7:00 AM — The Arrival My alarm rang.

I opened one eye.

Then the other.

I stared at the ceiling.

Yaya: "Five more minutes."

Mom: "YAHYA! GET READY!"

Yaya: "Five seconds?"

Mom: "NOW!"

I got out of bed.

Today was the day.

My parents had already packed most of my things. My laptop, clothes, headphones, football, and gaming accessories were ready.

My PS5 was carefully packed too.

I wasn't leaving that behind.

Not happening.

After breakfast, Dad loaded the last suitcase into the car.

Dad: "Everything?"

Yaya: "Laptop?"

Dad: "Yes."

Yaya: "PS5?"

Dad: "Yes."

Yaya: "Controller?"

Dad: "Yes."

Yaya: "Football?"

Dad: "Yes."

Yaya: "My charger?"

Dad: "Yahya."

Yaya: "Important question."

Mom laughed.

A little while later, we arrived.

I stepped out of the car.

And froze.

The academy was MASSIVE.

There were several buildings connected by beautiful walkways.

A huge central courtyard.

A library with enormous windows.

A sports complex.

A swimming pool.

No football stadium.

And several residential buildings.

There was even a fountain in the middle of the courtyard.

I looked at the entrance sign.

CIS MIDDLE SCHOOL JR. G.

Yaya: "Okay. This place is actually insane."

Dad: "You'll be fine."

Yaya: "You say that like you aren't abandoning me in a kingdom."

Mom: "You'll make friends."

I looked at the enormous entrance.

Yaya: "Hopefully."

I hugged my parents goodbye and dragged my suitcase toward the reception building.

A staff member checked my documents.

Then she looked at me.

Staff member: "You're our new student?"

Yaya: "Unfortunately, yes."

She smiled.

Staff member: "Welcome to CIS."

I was handed my room key.

ROOM 214.

And then I discovered something.

The school had hundreds of students.

Almost all of them were girls.

And I was the new boy.

The news travelled faster than Wi-Fi.

By the time I reached the residential building, several girls were already whispering.

Girl 1: "That's him."

Girl 2: "The new student?"

Girl 3: "Wait, he's actually a boy?"

I continued walking.

Yaya's internal thoughts: Great. I'm a walking school announcement.

10:30 AM — Room 214 I unlocked the door.

The room was bigger than I expected.

Two beds.

Two desks.

Two wardrobes.

A large window overlooking the courtyard.

And enough space for my gaming setup.

I immediately started unpacking.

Laptop on the desk.

Monitor beside it.

PS5 underneath.

Keyboard and mouse.

Headphones.

Football beside the wardrobe.

I stepped back.

Yaya: "Now we're talking."

I connected everything.

The monitor turned on.

The PS5 loaded.

My laptop opened.

Perfect.

I was home.

Well, almost.

There was one problem.

I had a roommate.

Her name was Lara.

I hadn't met her yet.

12:00 PM — The Pink Braids I was walking through the courtyard when I saw her.

Pink braids.

Green eyes.

A school bag hanging from one shoulder.

She was standing near the fountain, talking to another girl.

Then she noticed me.

Our eyes met.

She looked away.

Then looked back.

I continued walking.

A few seconds later, someone called out.

Girl: "HEY! NEW BOY!"

I turned.

Three girls were approaching.

Girl 1: "What's your name?"

Yaya: "Yahya."

Girl 2: "Do you play games?"

Yaya: "Yes."

Girl 3: "Do you have a girlfriend?"

Yaya: "I literally arrived today."

They laughed.

Then Lara walked over.

Lara: "You're in Room 214, right?"

Yaya: "Yeah."

Lara: "I'm your roommate."

I blinked.

Yaya: "Oh."

Lara: "I'm Lara."

Yaya: "Nice to meet you."

Lara smiled.

Lara: "You too."

I didn't know it then, but that simple conversation would become one of the most important parts of my entire year.

11:45 PM — Operation: Football Goal That night, I was staring out of the window.

The school had a sports complex.

A swimming pool.

Basketball areas.

But no football stadium.

No proper football goal.

I looked at my football.

Then at the empty space near the supervised activity workshop.

An idea appeared.

A terrible idea.

A brilliant idea.

I checked with the residential supervisor and got permission to use the workshop materials for a small practice goal the following evening.

But I couldn't stop thinking about it.

The next evening, under supervision, I helped assemble a small wooden practice goal.

It wasn't professional.

It wasn't beautiful.

But it worked.

I placed the ball down.

Took a few steps back.

And kicked.

THUNK.

The ball hit the wooden frame.

Yaya: "CROSSBAR!"

A voice came from behind me.

Lara: "It's almost midnight."

Yaya: "It's football."

Lara: "That's not an explanation."

Yaya: "It's a lifestyle."

She shook her head, smiling.

Then the supervisor appeared.

Supervisor: "Yahya. Time to head inside."

Yaya: "Understood."

I picked up the ball.

My first day was officially over.

I had a room.

A gaming setup.

And a roommate with pink braids.

I had been at CIS for less than twenty-four hours.

And somehow, I was already becoming a problem.

CHAPTER 2 — THE DISASTER

7:00 AM — Room 214 My alarm rang.

I reached for my phone.

7:00 AM.

I sat up.

Across the room, Lara was brushing her pink braids.

Lara: "Morning."

Yaya: "Morning."

Lara: "Did you sleep well?"

Yaya: "Yes. My bed is better than my old one."

Lara: "Good."

I opened my laptop.

My website was still waiting for me.

I had code to write.

Bugs to fix.

And a school to survive.

I thought it would be a normal morning.

I was wrong.

8:00 AM — The Questions Begin The moment I entered the classroom, three girls approached me.

Girl 1: "What's your favourite game?"

Girl 2: "Do you play Roblox?"

Girl 3: "Can you teach me coding?"

Yaya: "One at a time."

They laughed.

Then another girl approached.

Girl 4: "Can I sit beside you?"

Yaya: "Sure."

I sat down.

Then another girl appeared.

Then another.

By the time the teacher arrived, my desk had become a meeting point.

Teacher: "Everyone, please return to your seats."

I had never been so grateful to hear a teacher's voice.

12:30 PM — The Lunch Question At lunch, a girl asked me something.

Girl: "Yaya, do you have a girlfriend?"

Yaya: "No."

Girl: "Would you want one?"

I paused.

Yaya: "I don't really know. I just got here."

Lara was sitting nearby.

She looked down at her food.

Amir wasn't here yet.

I didn't know it, but I was going to need him.

4:00 PM — The Privacy Patch Back in Room 214, Lara was reading while I played Spider-Man 2.

Lara: "You really like gaming."

Yaya: "It's a core part of my operating system."

Lara: "You're weird."

Yaya: "Thank you."

She laughed.

A group of girls knocked.

Girl: "Can we come in?"

I paused the game.

Yaya: "Not right now. I need some time to work."

Girl: "Oh. Okay."

Lara looked at me.

Lara: "You can just say no."

Yaya: "I know. I just don't want anyone to think I'm being rude."

Lara: "Having boundaries isn't rude."

I looked at her.

She was right.

That sentence would become important later.

9:00 PM — The First Strange Message I was about to sleep when my phone vibrated.

Unknown: Welcome to CIS, Subject Zero.

I stared at the screen.

Yaya: "What?"

Another message arrived.

Unknown: You have no idea what happened here before you arrived.

I sat up.

Then a third message appeared.

Unknown: Ask about the Infinity Project.

I looked across the room.

Lara was asleep.

The screen went dark.

And I suddenly didn't feel very sleepy anymore.

CHAPTER 3 — THE ONE-DOLLAR DISASTER

8:00 AM — The One-Dollar Incident I arrived at breakfast with one dollar in my pocket.

One.

Not ten.

Not a hundred.

One dollar.

I bought a small snack and sat down.

Then someone noticed.

Girl: "You only have one dollar?"

Yaya: "It's a dollar. Not a financial crisis."

Girl 2: "I can give you more."

Girl 3: "Me too!"

Within minutes, several girls were offering me money.

I stared at the table.

Yaya: "WHY IS EVERYONE TRYING TO FUND MY BREAKFAST?"

Lara laughed.

Lara: "You're famous."

Yaya: "I didn't ask to become a bank."

By lunch, Amir had heard about it.

He wasn't officially part of my life yet, but the story somehow reached him.

He sent me a message.

Unknown Student: Bro, I heard you're running a bank.

I replied.

Yaya: Who are you?

Unknown Student: Your future business partner.

I had no idea who this guy was.

But I already suspected he was going to be trouble.

3:00 PM — The Missing Football Field I went to the courtyard with my football.

A few girls wanted to learn how to play.

I showed them how to pass, control the ball, and aim.

Then I demonstrated my favourite move.

I took a step forward.

Shifted my weight.

Moved the ball across my body.

Then accelerated into open space.

Yaya: "Domain Expansion: INFINITE INSTINCT PHANTOM!"

The girls stared.

One of them clapped.

Lara: "That name is ridiculous."

Yaya: "It's legendary."

I repeated the move.

This time, I finished with a shot into the practice goal.

THUNK.

Crossbar.

Again.

Yaya: "THE CROSSBAR HATES ME."

Lara laughed.

For a moment, everything felt normal.

Then I noticed something strange.

A small silver symbol had been scratched into the side of the wooden goal.

An infinity sign.

I touched it.

And for a split second, I remembered a place I had never visited.

A stadium.

Purple lights.

A floating football.

Three silhouettes.

Then it disappeared.

I stepped back.

Yaya: "What was that?"

10:00 PM — Subject Zero My phone vibrated.

Unknown: Nice move.

I froze.

Yaya: Who is this?

Unknown: Infinite Instinct Phantom.

I stared at the screen.

Yaya: How do you know that name?

No reply.

Then one final message appeared.

Unknown: You invented it again.

I read the sentence twice.

Again?

What did that mean?

CHAPTER 4 — THE GIRL WITH PINK BRAIDS

7:00 AM — The Developer Has a Problem I woke up in Room 214.

Lara was already getting ready.

Yaya: "Morning."

Lara: "Morning, Yaya."

I paused.

Yaya: "Wait. Yaya?"

Lara: "Isn't that what you like being called?"

I smiled.

Yaya: "Yeah."

She sat down beside her desk.

Lara: "I like it."

I looked away.

Yaya's internal thoughts: System error. Unexpected compliment detected.

3:30 PM — The Fountain After lessons, I found Lara near the fountain.

She was looking at the water.

I walked over.

Yaya: "Hey."

Lara: "Hey."

For a few seconds, neither of us spoke.

Then she turned toward me.

Lara: "Can I ask you something?"

Yaya: "Sure."

Lara: "Do you like being here?"

I considered the question.

Yaya: "It's chaotic. But I'm starting to."

Lara: "Because of the school?"

Yaya: "Partly."

She smiled.

Then she took a breath.

Lara: "I think you're different from what I expected."

Yaya: "Is that good or bad?"

Lara: "Good."

I smiled.

Yaya: "I like spending time with you too."

She looked down.

Her cheeks turned pink.

Yaya: "Are you okay?"

Lara: "Yes."

Yaya: "You're blushing."

Lara: "YOU'RE IMAGINING THINGS."

I laughed.

We decided to get to know each other better.

No dramatic promises.

No rushing.

Just two people who enjoyed spending time together.

5:00 PM — The Announcement Unfortunately, Amir had discovered us.

He appeared from behind a nearby pillar.

Amir: "THE LORE IS EXPANDING!"

Yaya: "WHO ARE YOU?"

Amir: "A WITNESS."

Lara covered her face.

Amir: "I HAVE SEEN THE FOUNTAIN ARC."

Yaya: "Please leave."

Amir: "NEVER."

He ran away laughing.

I looked at Lara.

Lara: "He's going to be annoying."

Yaya: "I can already tell."

9:00 PM — Congratulations, Subject Zero My phone vibrated.

Unknown: Congratulations, Subject Zero.

Yaya: Stop calling me that.

Unknown: You have found one of them.

Yaya: One of who?

Unknown: Ask Zayn about the first experiment.

I stared at the message.

Zayn?

Who was Zayn?

And why did I feel like I had heard that name before?

CHAPTER 5 — THE NEW BOY: A WARNING FROM YAYA

7:30 AM — Another Student I was walking toward breakfast when I noticed a crowd near reception.

A new student had arrived.

Another boy.

I stopped.

Yaya: "Wait."

A girl waved toward me.

Girl: "Yaya! Come here!"

I approached.

The new boy was standing beside a staff member, looking extremely confused.

He noticed me.

New boy: "You're the other guy?"

Yaya: "Unfortunately."

He laughed.

I introduced myself.

Yaya: "I'm Yaya."

New boy: "Nice to meet you."

8:00 AM — The Survival Briefing We walked toward the courtyard.

Yaya: "Listen. I need to explain something."

New boy: "What?"

Yaya: "This school is chaotic."

New boy: "I noticed."

Yaya: "People will ask questions. A lot of questions. You don't have to answer everything."

New boy: "Okay."

Yaya: "You can be friendly without letting people invade your personal space."

He nodded.

New boy: "Sounds like you've had experience."

Yaya: "Bro. You have no idea."

I told him about the first days.

The questions.

The one-dollar incident.

The wooden football goal.

The mysterious messages.

And Lara.

He listened carefully.

New boy: "So basically, you survived the first week."

Yaya: "Barely."

3:00 PM — The Survivors' Alliance We sat near the fountain.

Yaya: "I have an idea."

Yaya: "We create a group."

New boy: "For what?"

Yaya: "Surviving this school."

He laughed.

We named it:

THE SURVIVORS' ALLIANCE.

Our rules were simple:

Respect each other's personal space. Help each other with schoolwork and projects. Play football whenever possible. Don't pressure anyone into friendships or relationships. If one of us needs help, the other shows up. New boy: "That's actually a good idea."

Yaya: "Of course. I'm a professional."

New boy: "You built a wooden goal."

Yaya: "A PROFESSIONAL WOODEN GOAL."

We laughed.

For the first time, I wasn't the only boy trying to understand the school.

10:00 PM — The Warning My phone vibrated.

Unknown: I see you've met the second boy.

Yaya: Who are you?

Unknown: You should be asking why he was admitted.

I looked at the message.

Then at the dark window.

Unknown: Not everyone at CIS is here for the same reason.

I closed my phone.

The Survivors' Alliance had two members.

And apparently, we were already part of something much bigger.

CHAPTER 6 — THE SECOND VICTIM: THE GREAT DORM INVASION

8:00 AM — The Empty Seat The new boy wasn't at breakfast.

I noticed immediately.

Yaya: "Where is he?"

Lara: "He's sick, I think."

I checked my phone.

A message from him.

New boy: I'm staying in my dorm today. Not feeling great.

Yaya: Rest up, bro.

I put my phone away.

I thought that was the end of it.

It wasn't.

11:00 AM — The Story At lunch, I finally heard from him again.

New boy: BRO.

Yaya: What?

New boy: YOU WILL NOT BELIEVE WHAT HAPPENED.

New boy: I WAS TRYING TO SLEEP.

I stared at the message.

Then another arrived.

New boy: Almost every girl in the school came to visit.

I blinked.

Yaya: "WHAT?"

Lara looked at me.

Lara: "What happened?"

Yaya: "The Great Dorm Invasion."

11:15 AM — The Invasion, According to the Victim He explained everything.

He had been resting in his dorm when someone knocked.

Then another person arrived.

Then another.

Some brought snacks.

Some brought cards.

Some wanted to ask questions.

Some simply wanted to check whether he was okay.

The visits became a parade.

He eventually asked everyone to let him rest.

And after the dorm supervisor helped manage the visits, the girls left the snacks and cards outside.

He finally got some peace.

Almost.

Because his phone kept vibrating.

Girl 1: Get well soon!

Girl 2: We left snacks outside!

Girl 3: Rest well!

New boy: BRO MY PHONE IS A HOSPITAL RECEPTION.

I laughed so hard I nearly dropped it.

3:00 PM — The Alliance Meeting We met near the sports complex.

Yaya: "You survived."

New boy: "Barely."

Yaya: "The Great Dorm Invasion."

New boy: "Never mention it again."

I nodded seriously.

Yaya: "Understood."

Then I raised my hand.

Yaya: "But we need a new alliance rule."

Yaya: "Rest means rest."

He nodded.

We agreed that being friendly didn't mean anyone was entitled to our time.

Lara later told me she had sent him a message wishing him well but didn't visit because she knew he needed space.

I smiled.

Yaya: "That's actually thoughtful."

Lara: "People should be allowed to rest."

I remembered what she had said before.

Boundaries weren't rude.

They were necessary.

9:00 PM — The Growing Alliance My phone vibrated.

Unknown: The alliance is growing.

Yaya: Who are you?

Unknown: You should be asking what you were before it existed.

I frowned.

Another message appeared.

Unknown: Three survivors. One forgotten promise.

I looked at the infinity symbol scratched into my desk.

Something was connecting all of this.

And I was beginning to think the school wasn't the only thing I needed to survive.

CHAPTER 7 — AMIR DOLLA DOLLA

7:00 AM — The New Member I woke up in Room 214.

Lara was already awake.

Yaya: "Morning."

Lara: "Morning."

I checked the Survivors' Alliance group.

One new message.

New boy: Bro, I met someone.

Yaya: Who?

New boy: His name is Amir.

Yaya: Okay?

New boy: He calls himself Amir Dolla Dolla.

I stared at the screen.

Yaya: "That cannot be his actual name."

9:00 AM — The Introduction I finally met him.

He was standing near the classroom door, holding a notebook.

Amir: "YOU'RE YAYA!"

Yaya: "I am."

Amir: "THE LEGEND."

Yaya: "Please don't."

Amir: "THE BANKER OF THE ONE-DOLLAR INCIDENT!"

Yaya: "HOW DOES EVERYONE KNOW ABOUT THAT?"

He laughed.

We introduced ourselves properly.

Amir was energetic, confident, and extremely committed to making every situation ten times louder than necessary.

He also had a talent for turning simple conversations into business presentations.

Amir: "I have a plan."

Yaya: "No."

Amir: "You haven't heard it."

Yaya: "I know you."

Amir: "WE BUILD AN EMPIRE."

Yaya: "We're in school."

Amir: "A SCHOOL EMPIRE."

I looked at the new boy.

He looked at me.

We both sighed.

3:00 PM — The Third Member We sat together near the fountain.

The Survivors' Alliance had officially grown.

Me.

The new boy.

Amir.

Amir: "I would like to propose that our organisation has a financial department."

Yaya: "Denied."

Amir: "WHY?"

Yaya: "Because you named yourself Dolla Dolla."

Amir: "IT'S A BRAND."

I laughed.

For the first time, the school felt less overwhelming.

We had a group.

We had a plan.

And we had Amir.

Which was probably a problem.

CHAPTER 8 — THE SECOND DOMAIN EXPANSION

2:00 PM — Training Request Amir approached me after lessons.

Amir: "Yaya."

Yaya: "What?"

Amir: "Teach me your football move."

Yaya: "Infinite Instinct Phantom?"

Amir: "YES."

Yaya: "It's not easy."

Amir: "I AM READY."

We headed to the practice area.

I demonstrated the movement slowly.

Amir tried.

He moved the ball.

Shifted his weight.

Then somehow kicked it in completely the wrong direction.

The ball rolled toward the benches.

Silence.

Yaya: "Bro."

Amir: "I MEANT TO DO THAT."

Yaya: "Uninstall Instinct."

He burst out laughing.

3:00 PM — The Duo After several attempts, Amir finally got the movement right.

Not perfectly.

But well enough.

Yaya: "There you go!"

Amir: "I AM HIM."

Yaya: "You're getting there."

We practised passing and shooting.

The girls nearby watched.

Lara: "You two are impossible."

Amir: "THANK YOU!"

Avinia was standing nearby.

She had blonde hair and blue eyes.

She laughed at one of Amir's terrible attempts.

Amir noticed.

He immediately stood up straight.

Amir: "Hello."

Avinia: "Hello."

Yaya looked at him.

Yaya: "Oh?"

Amir: "Don't."

Yaya: "I said nothing."

Amir: "YOUR FACE SAID EVERYTHING."

The Infinite Instinct Duo had been born.

And Amir had apparently discovered a new side quest.

CHAPTER 9 — THE EGYPTIAN REVEAL

4:00 PM — The Double Outing A few days later, we were allowed to attend a supervised outing.

Me and Lara.

Amir and Avinia.

Four people.

One mission.

Have a normal afternoon.

I wore a simple outfit and carried my phone.

Amir arrived looking like he was about to attend a business meeting.

Yaya: "Why are you dressed like a billionaire?"

Amir: "Because I am one."

Avinia laughed.

Lara shook her head.

We spent the afternoon exploring, talking, and taking pictures.

It was peaceful.

Almost suspiciously peaceful.

5:00 PM — The Language Mystery At one point, Amir heard me speaking Arabic on the phone.

Amir: "WAIT. YOU SPEAK ARABIC?"

Yaya: "Obviously."

Amir: "WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME?"

Yaya: "You never asked."

He looked genuinely offended.

Amir: "I NEED LESSONS."

Yaya: "You need patience first."

Amir: "I HAVE NONE."

Lara laughed.

Avinia smiled at him.

Amir immediately became quieter.

A historic event.

6:00 PM — The King of Football During the outing, we passed a football event display featuring Egyptian football history.

We spent a while talking about our favourite players.

I mentioned Mohamed Salah.

Amir immediately launched into a speech about Egyptian football.

Amir: "THE KING."

Yaya: "You literally just discovered Arabic."

Amir: "I KNOW FOOTBALL."

We all laughed.

The outing ended with pictures, food, and a promise to do it again.

For once, I didn't think about the mysterious messages.

I just enjoyed the afternoon.

But when I returned to Room 214, my phone showed a notification.

Unknown: You have found the second heart.

I stared at it.

Then another message appeared.

Unknown: The third one remembers you.

CHAPTER 10 — THE REALITY WARP

2:00 AM — The Dream I was asleep.

Then suddenly, I was standing in a stadium.

Not the school sports complex.

Not a real stadium.

This place was enormous.

Purple and silver lights stretched across the walls.

A football floated in the centre of the field.

Three figures stood in the distance.

One was me.

One looked like Amir.

The third was hidden in shadow.

Then I heard a voice.

Voice: "You came back."

Yaya: "Where am I?"

Voice: "Where you promised."

The lights flickered.

A fourth silhouette appeared.

I tried to see their face.

But the stadium disappeared.

7:00 AM — The Notebook I woke up suddenly.

Yaya: "WHAT WAS THAT?"

Lara looked over.

Lara: "Are you okay?"

Yaya: "I had the weirdest dream."

I told her about the stadium.

Later, I mentioned it to Amir.

He laughed at first.

Then he stopped.

Amir: "Wait."

Yaya: "What?"

Amir: "I saw something like that too."

We looked at each other.

Then Zayn appeared.

He was a quiet student who spent much of his time reading and writing in a notebook.

He overheard us.

Zayn: "You saw the stadium?"

I froze.

Yaya: "How do you know about it?"

Zayn opened his notebook.

On one page was a drawing.

A purple-and-silver stadium.

A floating football.

Three silhouettes.

And underneath, in neat handwriting:

INFINITE INSTINCT PHANTOM.

I stared.

Yaya: "That's my move."

Zayn looked at me.

Zayn: "I know."

Yaya: "How?"

Zayn closed the notebook.

Zayn: "I don't remember."

I looked at Amir.

Amir looked at me.

This was no longer just a weird dream.

Someone else remembered something.

Something we had forgotten.

CHAPTER 11 — THE FOURTH SURVIVOR'S SECRET

12:00 PM — The Mainframe Has a Secret We were sitting together at lunch.

Lara.

Amir.

Avinia.

Zayn.

Zayn was unusually quiet.

Amir: "Mainframe. You good?"

Zayn: "I need to tell you something."

We stopped talking.

Zayn opened his notebook.

Inside were several drawings.

A silver emblem.

Three silhouettes.

And a small music note.

Zayn: "I think I've seen these before."

Yaya: "Where?"

Zayn: "In my dreams."

Amir: "BRO, WE'RE ALL HAVING THE SAME DREAM?"

Zayn nodded.

Then he looked toward the school showcase posters.

Zayn: "There was a girl there."

Yaya: "Who?"

Zayn: "I don't remember her name."

He turned a page.

A girl was drawn beside a silver emblem.

Yaya: "Infinite Instinct Phantom?"

Zayn nodded.

Zayn: "I promised I would."

Then he looked down.

Zayn: "I think I forgot her."

3:00 PM — The Showcase We went to the school showcase.

There were science projects, coding demonstrations, art displays, and music performances.

I noticed a girl standing near the stage.

She had a notebook.

And she was humming a short melody.

Zayn stopped walking.

Zayn: "That's it."

Zayn: "The song."

The girl looked up.

For a second, she seemed to recognise him.

Then she smiled.

Girl: "Hi."

Zayn couldn't speak.

Amir whispered.

Amir: "Mainframe.exe has stopped responding."

I nudged him.

Yaya: "Be quiet."

The girl introduced herself.

Violetta.

Zayn looked at her notebook.

There was a tiny silver symbol on the cover.

The same one.

And suddenly, I understood.

There was another person connected to the mystery.

Someone who had been waiting for Zayn to remember.

CHAPTER 12 — THE CHASE FOR THE MEMORY

7:00 AM — The Search I woke up with one mission.

Find the girl.

The girl from the showcase.

The girl Zayn had apparently promised to teach Infinite Instinct Phantom.

The girl whose name he couldn't remember.

We searched the activity boards.

The library.

The music rooms.

The sports complex.

Finally, we found Violetta near the courtyard.

Zayn approached carefully.

Zayn: "Hi."

Violetta: "Hello."

Zayn: "I think we've met before."

She smiled.

Violetta: "I think so too."

Zayn looked confused.

Zayn: "I can't remember."

Violetta: "That's okay."

She opened her notebook.

Inside was a drawing of the same stadium.

Yaya: "Where did you get that?"

Violetta: "I don't know. I've had it for a long time."

Then she turned to a page.

A sentence was written there:

THE FOURTH HEART WILL REMEMBER THE PROMISE.

Zayn stared at it.

4:00 PM — The 0.1% Chance We went to the library.

I searched the school archive for the silver symbol.

Nothing.

Amir searched the school website.

Nothing.

Zayn examined the notebook.

Nothing.

Then I noticed a tiny mark beneath the cover.

A small sequence of numbers.

I typed it into the school archive search.

One result appeared.

A file.

INFINITE INSTINCT PROJECT — ARCHIVED.

The file was restricted.

But the title was enough.

Yaya: "This is real."

Amir: "I don't like that."

Lara: "What does it mean?"

I closed the laptop.

Yaya: "I think we're about to find out."

CHAPTER 13 — THE FIRST CLUE

7:00 AM — Subject Zero I woke up thinking about three words.

Subject Zero.

The phrase had appeared in the messages.

It was written in the archive.

And it seemed connected to me.

I opened my laptop.

The file was still there.

I tried searching the phrase again.

This time, a small result appeared.

SUBJECT ZERO: INITIAL RECORD

I clicked.

The screen went blank.

Then a message appeared.

ACCESS DENIED.

I leaned back.

Yaya: "Of course."

1:00 PM — The First Clue Zayn arrived with his notebook.

Zayn: "I found something."

He placed it on the table.

There was a silver emblem.

Beneath it were four small circles.

Three were filled.

One was empty.

Amir: "What does that mean?"

Zayn: "I don't know."

Violetta studied the page.

Violetta: "Maybe it's not a group of three."

I looked at her.

Yaya: "What do you mean?"

Violetta: "Maybe there were always four."

Silence.

I remembered the stadium.

Three silhouettes.

A fourth presence.

Maybe the dream had been incomplete.

4:00 PM — Together We decided to investigate as a team.

No more secrets.

No more mysterious messages controlling the conversation.

We would find the truth ourselves.

Lara agreed.

Avinia agreed.

Violetta agreed.

Amir raised his hand.

Amir: "I propose we call ourselves the Infinity Investigators."

Yaya: "No."

Amir: "WHY?"

Yaya: "Because that sounds like a school club."

Amir: "IT IS A SCHOOL CLUB."

We laughed.

But beneath the jokes, I knew something had changed.

We weren't just trying to understand a weird notebook.

We were trying to understand our own past.

CHAPTER 14 — THE THIRD SILHOUETTE

6:45 AM — The Face I Almost Recognised I woke up with an image stuck in my head.

Three silhouettes.

A purple-and-silver stadium.

A floating football.

And a fourth figure standing behind them.

I tried to remember the face.

Nothing.

Yaya: "Come on, brain. Give me ONE pixel."

I got ready and went to breakfast.

Amir was already there.

Amir: "I HAD THE DREAM AGAIN."

Yaya: "Which one?"

Amir: "THE STADIUM."

I sat down.

Amir: "There were three people."

Yaya: "I know."

Amir: "But I think one of them was wearing our old emblem."

Yaya: "Our?"

He stopped.

Amir: "I don't know why I said that."

2:00 PM — The Three Figures We met in the library.

Zayn opened his notebook.

There were three figures.

One stood in the centre.

One held a football.

One carried a silver notebook.

Beneath them were three words.

LEAD. REMEMBER. RETURN.

Lara read them aloud.

Lara: "What does that mean?"

Zayn: "I think they were roles."

Amir: "Roles in what?"

Nobody answered.

Then Amir suddenly looked up.

Amir: "I've heard that before."

Yaya: "Where?"

Amir shook his head.

Amir: "I don't know. But I remember something."

He looked directly at me.

Amir: "They called us by a different name."

The notebook's pages began glowing purple and silver.

CHAPTER 15 — THE NAME BEFORE THE ALLIANCE

7:00 AM — Amir's Memory Amir arrived at breakfast looking exhausted.

Yaya: "You okay?"

Amir: "I remembered something."

We gathered around him.

Amir: "I saw a silver emblem. There was a voice. And three people standing together."

Zayn opened the notebook.

Zayn: "What were they called?"

Amir closed his eyes.

For a few seconds, he said nothing.

Then he whispered:

Amir: "The Infinity Three."

Silence.

Yaya: "The Infinity Three?"

Amir nodded.

Amir: "I think that was our name."

I looked at the notebook.

The words appeared by themselves.

THE INFINITY THREE.

Then another message appeared.

THE NEXT MEMORY WILL BEGIN WITH AMIR.

Amir stepped back.

Amir: "I don't like being the main character."

Yaya: "Too late."

11:00 PM — Welcome Back That night, I was lying in bed.

The room was quiet.

Lara was asleep.

My laptop was closed.

My phone was on the desk.

Then I heard a voice.

Not from my phone.

Not from the hallway.

Somewhere I couldn't explain.

Voice: "Welcome back, Subject Zero."

My eyes snapped open.

Silence.

I pulled the blanket closer.

Yaya: "Nah. Absolutely not."

I switched on the bedside lamp.

And stayed awake for a while.

CHAPTER 16 — THE STADIUM THAT NEVER EXISTED

8:00 AM — The Old Photograph We gathered in the library.

It showed a football showcase from years ago.

In the background was a student wearing the silver emblem.

The face was blurred.

Zayn studied it.

Zayn: "I've seen this before."

Yaya: "Where?"

Zayn: "In the stadium."

He opened his notebook.

Three roles appeared.

ONE WOULD LEAD.

ONE WOULD REMEMBER.

ONE WOULD RETURN.

I looked at Amir.

Then at Zayn.

Yaya: "Which one are we?"

Zayn didn't answer.

4:00 PM — The Stadium That Never Existed I went to practise football.

The wooden goal stood near the supervised practice area.

I placed the ball down.

Took a breath.

And performed Infinite Instinct Phantom.

For a moment, the world changed.

The courtyard disappeared.

The wooden goal disappeared.

I was standing in the purple-and-silver stadium.

The football floated in front of me.

Three silhouettes stood beneath the lights.

Voice: "You found the stadium."

I turned.

Yaya: "Who are you?"

Voice: "Now find me."

The stadium vanished.

I stumbled back.

The football rolled away.

I stared at the empty courtyard.

Yaya: "NAHHH. THIS PERSON IS DOING SIDE QUESTS IN REAL LIFE."

I picked up the ball.

But I couldn't stop thinking about the voice.

CHAPTER 17 — THE THIRD NAME

7:00 AM — The Person Already Close Zayn was waiting near the library.

He had barely slept.

Zayn: "I think the person is already close."

Zayn: "The fourth figure."

Amir joined us.

Amir: "So we're looking for someone who might already be here?"

Violetta nodded.

Violetta: "Maybe someone we've already met."

Lara looked at the notebook.

Lara: "Then why haven't we recognised them?"

Nobody knew.

3:00 PM — The Third Name We examined the old photograph.

The three silhouettes were clearer now.

One was wearing a football shirt.

One held the silver notebook.

The third stood behind them.

Amir leaned closer.

Amir: "Wait."

Yaya: "What?"

Amir: "I think I know that shape."

Zayn looked at him.

Amir: "I saw it before."

He tried to explain.

But the memory disappeared before he could finish.

The notebook suddenly displayed a new message.

THREE SURVIVORS.

ONE FORGOTTEN NAME.

FOUR HEARTS.

ONE PROMISE THAT MUST BE KEPT.

Then the page went blank.

We sat in silence.

For once, Amir didn't make a joke.

CHAPTER 18 — THE PROMISE THAT CONNECTED US

3:03 AM — The Notification I was sleeping peacefully.

No school.

No homework.

No mysterious stadium.

No supernatural notebook.

For once, my brain had decided to behave.

Then my phone vibrated.

Survivors' Alliance — 17 notifications.

I opened the group chat.

Amir: EVERYONE ONLINE.

Yaya: It's 3 AM.

Amir: IMPORTANT.

Zayn: The notebook opened by itself.

Yaya: What?

Four circles were visible.

Three were glowing.

The fourth was slowly filling.

Then another message appeared.

THE PROMISE IS NOT COMPLETE.

8:00 AM — The Promise We met in the library.

Zayn explained that he had remembered something.

A promise.

Three people standing together.

A fourth person waiting.

A voice saying:

"Even if you forget, find each other again."

I looked at Amir.

Amir looked at Zayn.

Then I remembered the stadium.

The floating football.

The silver emblem.

The feeling that I had been there before.

Yaya: "We promised to find each other."

Zayn nodded.

Violetta looked at the notebook.

Violetta: "Then maybe this isn't about remembering everything."

Lara: "Maybe it's about keeping the promise now."

I looked around the table.

For the first time, the mystery felt less like something chasing us.

It felt like something we could face together.

10:00 PM — Chapter Two of the Memory Project Zayn's phone vibrated.

A new message appeared.

CHAPTER TWO OF THE MEMORY PROJECT BEGINS NOW.

Yaya: "Nobody asked."

Then Zayn sent another message.

Zayn: I can't remember their name.

I stared at the screen.

The fourth person wasn't simply waiting for us to remember them.

They had been watching us remember.

CHAPTER 19 — THE VOICE BEHIND SUBJECT ZERO

7:00 AM — Seventeen Notifications I woke up to seventeen notifications.

Seventeen.

At this point, my phone wasn't a communication device.

It was a supernatural alarm system with terrible battery management.

I opened the Survivors' Alliance chat.

Amir: EVERYONE ONLINE. NOW.

Yaya: Good morning to you too.

Zayn: Something happened.

Lara: What?

Zayn: I received another message.

He sent a screenshot.

Unknown: You found the others.

Unknown: Now find me.

I stared at it.

Yaya: "Who is this person?"

Zayn: "I don't know."

10:00 AM — The Warning We met in the library.

The notebook was open.

The silver emblem looked different now.

Four dots.

All glowing.

Beneath them was a sentence.

THE FOURTH SUBJECT IS CLOSE.

Amir looked around.

Amir: "So who's the fourth?"

Violetta looked toward the hallway.

For a moment, I thought she recognised someone.

But she said nothing.

Then a new message appeared.

DO NOT TRUST THE FIRST MEMORY.

Lara read it twice.

Lara: "What does that mean?"

Zayn closed the notebook.

Zayn: "I think someone is trying to stop us from remembering."

5:00 PM — The Voice I was walking back toward Room 214 when my phone vibrated.

Unknown number.

Unknown: Stay away from the notebook.

I stopped.

Yaya: Who are you?

Unknown: You found the others.

Unknown: Now find me.

I looked toward the library.

Then toward the courtyard.

The sun was setting.

And for the first time, I had a terrifying thought.

What if the fourth subject wasn't hiding in the shadows?

What if we'd already spoken to them?

What if they knew our names, our faces, and our promise?

I grabbed my bag.

Because tomorrow, we were going to find out why someone had warned me to stay away.

CHAPTER 20 — THE CONFESSION AND THE FINAL MEMORY

8:00 AM — Emergency Meeting I arrived at breakfast ready for battle.

Football?

Ready.

Backpack?

Ready.

Survivors' Alliance?

Ready.

Brain cells?

Approximately two.

Amir was already waiting.

Amir: "WE HAVE A PROBLEM."

Yaya: "When don't we?"

Zayn placed the notebook on the table.

Violetta sat beside him.

Lara and Avinia joined us.

The notebook displayed one sentence.

THE THIRD MEMORY IS NOT A MEMORY OF THE PAST.

I frowned.

Yaya: "Then what is it?"

Zayn turned the page.

A new sentence appeared.

IT IS A MEMORY OF THE PROMISE.

10:00 AM — The Four Hearts We spent the morning discussing everything.

The dreams.

The stadium.

The emblem.

The Infinity Three.

The mysterious fourth figure.

And the possibility that our memories had been deliberately hidden.

Amir looked at the notebook.

Amir: "So what happens now?"

I looked at everyone.

Yaya: "We keep going."

Lara smiled.

Lara: "Together?"

Yaya: "Together."

Amir raised his hand.

Amir: "And we keep the Survivors' Alliance?"

Yaya: "Obviously."

Amir: "GOOD. BECAUSE I HAVE A BUSINESS PLAN."

Yaya: "Absolutely not."

Everyone laughed.

For a moment, the mystery didn't matter.

We had each other.

And that was enough.

3:00 PM — The Confessions Later that afternoon, I found Lara near the fountain.

She was looking at the water.

I walked over.

Yaya: "Hey."

Lara: "Hey."

We talked about the school year.

The chaos.

The strange messages.

The times we had laughed.

And how Room 214 had started feeling like home.

Lara: "I'm glad you came here."

I smiled.

Yaya: "Even though I'm annoying?"

Lara: "Especially because you're annoying."

I laughed.

Then I told her that I liked spending time with her.

That I wanted to keep getting to know her.

She smiled.

Lara: "I want that too."

We agreed that whatever happened with the mystery, we'd face it honestly.

No pressure.

No rushing.

Just us.

Across the courtyard, Amir and Avinia were talking too.

Amir was unusually quiet.

That alone was suspicious.

Avinia smiled at him.

Amir looked away, then back.

He finally admitted that he liked spending time with her.

Avinia smiled.

Avinia: "I like spending time with you too."

Amir looked like he'd just won a world championship.

Amir: "DOLLA DOLLA HAS SUCCESSFULLY COMPLETED THE MISSION."

Yaya: "BRO, PLEASE."

5:00 PM — Zayn and Violetta Zayn and Violetta were sitting near the library.

They were talking quietly.

Violetta showed him the melody in her notebook.

Zayn recognised it immediately.

Zayn: "I remember this."

Violetta: "You do?"

Zayn nodded.

Zayn: "I think I promised to learn it."

She smiled.

For the first time, Zayn looked completely at peace.

The four of us had found something important.

Not every mystery needed to be solved immediately.

Some things needed time.

9:00 PM — The Final Message I returned to Room 214.

Lara was reading.

My laptop was on.

The PS5 was resting beneath the monitor.

Everything looked normal.

I sat down and opened my phone.

One message.

Unknown number.

Unknown: Yahya. Don't let Zayn open the notebook tomorrow.

I stared.

A second message arrived.

Unknown: The third memory doesn't show you who you were.

I swallowed.

The final message appeared.

Unknown: It shows you who you betrayed.

My smile disappeared.

Across the room, the four silver dots appeared again.

I looked at the window.

Outside, the courtyard was empty.

The fountain was silent.

The school was asleep.

Then I heard something.

A melody.

The same melody Violetta had hummed.

Only this time...

There were five notes instead of four.

I looked back at my phone.

No new messages.

I opened the Survivors' Alliance group.

Amir had sent a picture of a terrible drawing of a football.

Amir: GOODNIGHT LEGENDS.

I laughed quietly.

Then I looked at the notebook on my desk.

I didn't know who Subject Zero was.

I didn't know what the Infinity Project had done.

I didn't know who the fourth subject was.

And I definitely didn't know what the mysterious message meant.

But I knew one thing.

I wasn't going to abandon my friends.

Not again.

I closed my laptop.

And lay down.

Tomorrow would bring another school day.

Another football session.

Another Amir Dolla Dolla business proposal.

Another conversation with Lara.

And maybe, just maybe, another clue.

But tonight, I was done thinking.

Because I was Yaya.

The developer.

The gamer.

The football player.

The boy who arrived at a girls-only boarding school and somehow became part of the strangest mystery in its history.
